Executive Director's Remarks

In the 6 years that we've operated as an organisation, we have consistently leveraged on one of our key strengths – our target demographic of young people between 18 and 35 years old. Making up over 60% of the country's population, they have the numeric power to turn the fortunes of Nigeria. Unfortunately, a large percentage live in poverty and lack access to basic social services – education, health and shelter.

How will a hungry man fight?

How will a man who has no idea of what is better demand better?

How will someone who doesn't understand that government is designed to serve him ask for better services?

Launched as part of our 5th anniversary in 2015, we continue to use the concept of 'Office of the Citizen' to educate citizens to their rights and responsibilities. While our social media footprint is strong, we are excited about the traction from our radio programs. Now in 4 cities, we hope to expand to 10 by the end of this year.

In 2012, we co-hosted a conference on new media and governance and it was the first conference of its kind in the world. In 2016, we co-hosted the conference again but added citizens as the bridge between the tools and the outcomes. The conference and our 4th appearance at Social Media Week Lagos facilitating conversations on citizens, technology and governance were our showcase events of the year.

We received funding to amplify our work on accountability in the National Assembly and were able to work with partners to stop a controversial bill that would gag social media in Nigeria. We continued our culture of debates and for the first time got involved in the health space by providing legal support for a medical negligence case where the doctor was finally suspended for medical negligence. These are some examples of our direct action.

Educating, showcasing ideas and success stories and direct action will continue to guide EiE's intervention in the years to come.

During the year, Alkasim Abdulkabir stepped down as one of the pioneer members of our Board. Prior to joining EiE's Board, Alkassim had worked for most of the global news stations including CNN, Al-Jazeera, France 24 and Chinese Central TV (CCTV). He has also written columns for Daily Times, Weekly Trust, Nigerian Dialogue online amongst others. EiE Nigeria is grateful for his contributions to the organization during his time on our Board and wish him the best in his future endeavors.

New team members joined us as well - Adeolu Adekola as our Program Manager; Adeoluwa Adebayo as a Creative Associate; Seun Akinyemi as a Research Associate; Debisi Alokolaro as our Media Manager; and Emem Nssien, a former staff member returning as our Administrator.

On behalf of the EiE Team, I thank all of our partners and funders for making our work possible. Please read through the summary of the year and we would love to hear from you on what you think we can do better.

Who We Are

Enough is Enough Nigeria (EiE) is a network of individuals and organizations committed to instituting a culture of good governance and public accountability in Nigeria through active citizenship. We are non-partisan.

EiE executes its programs through its partner organizations across the country. It started formal operations in January 2011; was registered as an NGO on July 5, 2012 and funded from grants and donations (cash and in kind).

EiE's #RSVP - Register|Select|Vote|Protect - is a key voter education campaign.

EiE has chosen technology as its tool of choice because it is less expensive, uncensored and it has the potential to positively influence Nigeria's largest voting demographic – those between 18 – 35.

EiE was an integral part of the #OccupyNigeria movement in 2012 and is currently championing the #OfficeOfTheCitizen and #OpenNASS campaigns.

'Office of the Citizen' was launched during EiE's 5th anniversary in 2015. It is a belief that places citizens at the heart of governance and we believe that the Office of the Citizen is the HIGHEST office in the land.

EiE educates citizens about their rights, roles and responsibilities to empower them in demanding accountability and transparency in governance and from government officials. We leverage heavily on technology and the media - digital and radio.

"Citizenship is a sense of belonging to a community for which one bears some responsibility. In a word, citizenship implies public-spiritedness, which is akin to patriotism, and has to be cultivated."

- Walter Berns

The Journey So Far

"Young people, when informed and empowered, when they realize that what they do truly makes a difference, can indeed change the world."

- Jane Goodall

EiE started as a coalition of youth and youth-led organizations and has transitioned to a network of individuals and organizations with a focus on young Nigerians because they constitute the largest voting demographic.

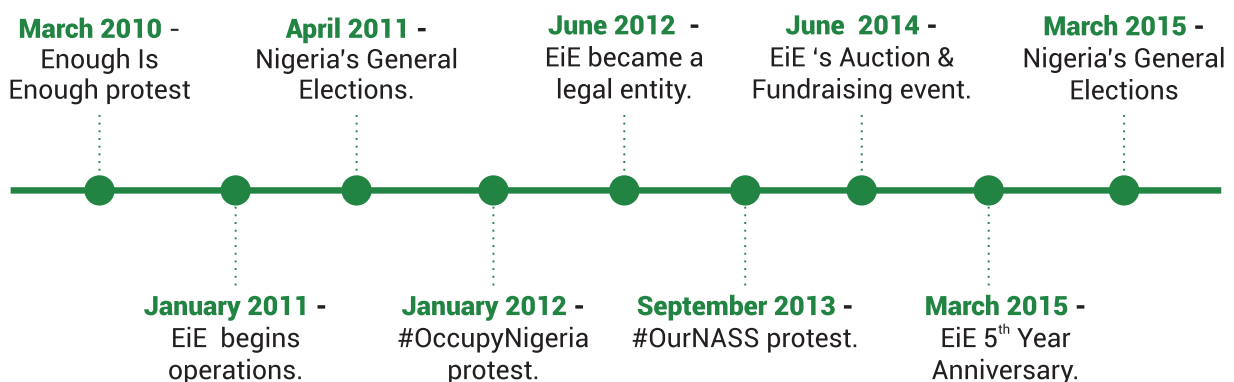

EiE is committed to instituting a culture of good governance and public accountability in Nigeria through active citizenship. We are non-partisan and firmly believe that young people have the power and potential to shape Nigeria's destiny.

The Future Awards was started in 2005 by The Future Project as a platform to celebrate achievements by young Nigerians between the ages of 18 and 31. The 2010 edition is remembered for Mrs. Ngozi Okonjo-Iweala's (Managing Director, World Bank) challenge to young people to take charge of their destinies to create the change they desired.

She emphasized the population advantage of young Nigerians in a way that many people had never heard before, insisting that change can only happen when young people say 'Enough!'

On February 26, 2010, Chude Jideonwo, co-founder of The Future Project sent an email titled 'Where is the Outrage?' to a group of friends. It was this call to action that eventually birthed what is now known as EiE Nigeria.

Over the past 5 years, we have remained the leading advocacy organization for young people focused on good governance and public accountability.

- Kwame Nkrumah

EiE is dedicated to the education, engagement and mobilization of Nigerians, especially its largest voting demographic – those between 18 and 35. We educate citizens about their rights, roles and responsibilities to empower them to demand accountability and transparency in governance and from government officials.

We do this through infographics; online engagement; SMS, apps, radio & TV programs; brochures and articles; town hall meetings with partners and our websites.

1) Infographs

Infographs help educate our audience in pictures and numbers, online and in national newspapers on various topics which included politics, security, sports & education.

TERROR IN THE FOOD BASKET

Security issues arise in the Middle Belt as various cultures clash leaving hundreds of people dead including women and children. The Fulani herdsmen have - on multiple occasions, been implicated in the unrest in Benue State. It is no new knowledge that the security issues have driven many residents away from communities and villages in the region - a sadly popular case is the Agatu community. Farm produce destroyed, trading and business stunted from constant fear of attacks.

Here Lies the Destiny of Africa!!

Aged leaders have continued to recycle themselves in Africa's political sphere and have given no room for youth participation. The popular saying "youths are the leaders of tomorrow" now begs the question "when is tomorrow?"

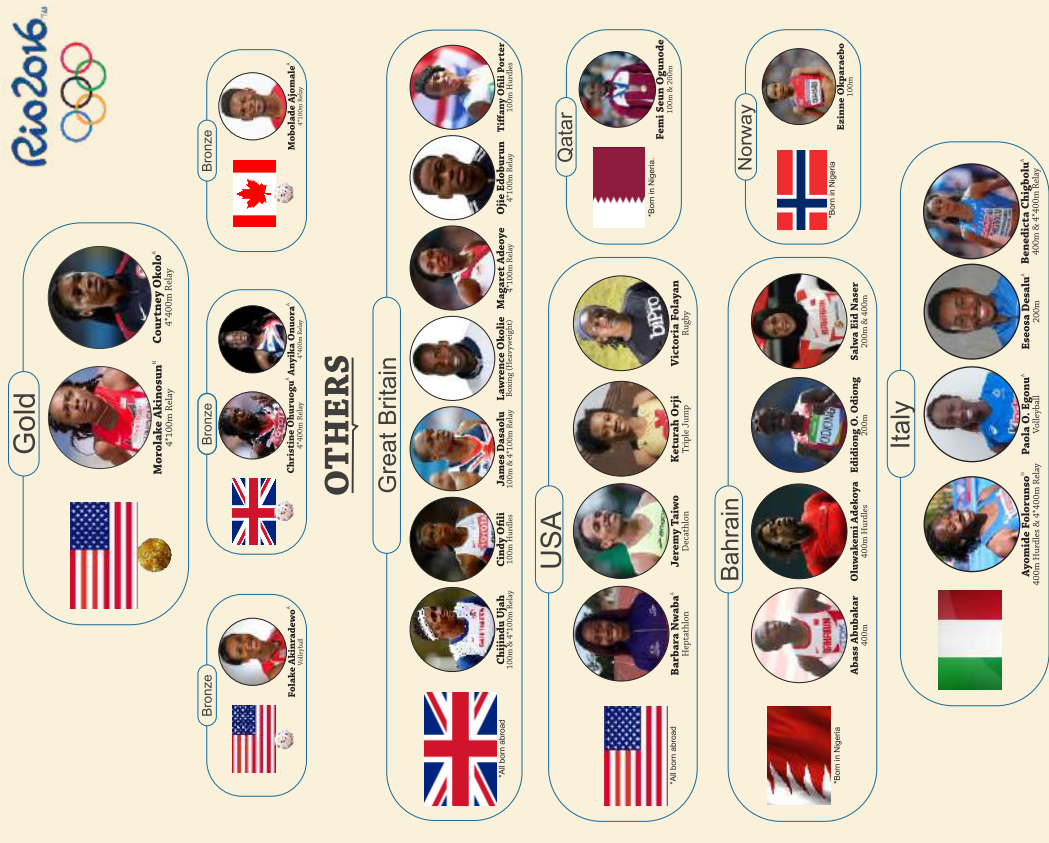

This clearly supports Bola Tinubu's often repeated statement - "Power is not served à la carte."

37% of African countries are led by individuals who are older than 70 years. 14 African countries have leaders who have been in office for more than 15 years.

EiE's ED Attends Final US Debate in Las Vegas

EiE joined Channels Television and debate organisers from 27 other countries from Africa, Latin America, Asia & the Caribbean to participate in the Presidential Debate Visit & International Debate Symposium. The attendees had a rigorous schedule over three days learning about best practices from the US and around the world and were fortunate to watch the final US Debate in Las Vegas.

"It is deeply gratifying that our work on debates was recognized and a privilege to learn from the CPD and other debate organisers. Of course, it's also very exciting to witness a debate that will be talked about for years to come," said Yemi Adamolekun, EiE's Executive Director.

3. Town-halls and Stakeholder Meetings

From our success with the Araromi/Mende Community in handling their Ikeja DISCO issues, we hosted a town-hall meeting with customers of Ikeja DISCO to educate them on their rights as electricity consumers and what to expect of their service provider. Issues around electricity metering, irregular power supply and inflated estimated billing were also discussed.

The town-hall – which held in July 2016, was a success with representatives of the Consumer Protection Council (CPC), Socio-Economic Right And Accountability Project (SERAP) and PowerUp NG engaging consumers. Unfortunately, no representative of Ikeja DISCO was present at the event to respond to consumers' concerns.

The Crux was conceptualized as a monthly conversation with a live audience, broadcast live on Channels TV. This program was held in partnership with Daria Media and Channels Television.

Given the importance of the power sector, the debut program was focused on the sector and it was divided into 3 episodes.

1) Electricity Metering - which aired on October 11, 2016.

The panelists included Babatunde Fashola, Minister of Power, Works and Housing; MDs of Nigerian meters-manufacturing companies – Mr. Kola Balogun and Ms. Chantelle Oluwabunmi Abdul; and DISCO MDs – Mr. Robert Dickerman (Enugu DISCO) and Dr. Jamil Gwamna (Kano DISCO).

The other 2 episodes aired in 2017.

ELECTRICITY TARIFF HIKE*: KNOW YOUR RIGHTS!

- 1 In February 2016, NERC increased tariffs without due process.
- 2 Meters must be provided for all customers before tariffs can be increased.
- 3 Notice of appeal by NERC does not invalidate the court judgement. Court judgement remains binding.
- 4 The electricity tariff increase is illegal and set aside until the appeal is heard. A reversal is highly unlikely.
- 5 Customers should resist any bill reflecting the illegal tariff increase.
- 6 Government and DISCOs should reverse the illegal increase and follow due process.

*A Federal High Court in Lagos on Wednesday July 13, 2016 annulled the increase in electricity tariffs announced by the Nigerian Electricity Regulatory Commission (NERC) on February 1, 2016.

4. Radio

We started the Office of the Citizen radio program in Lagos (Wednesday, January 13), Abeokuta (Tuesday, October 4) and Abuja (Tuesday, November 11) as weekly conversations on topical issues that are either particular to the state or affect the nation. Topics include the National Assembly, electricity metering and the Boko Haram insurgency. Each week, as we educate citizens, we also give them an opportunity to ask questions and share their opinions.

In Lagos, our partners were BudgIT & PowerUp NG but by the end of the year, PowerUp NG had pulled out of the partnership. Nigeria Info 99.3 FM provided free airtime as their support for the program.

In Abeokuta, our partners were BudgIT and Women Advocates Research and Documentation Centre (WARDC). Sweet 107.1 FM provided free airtime as their support.

In Abuja, our partners were BudgIT, Paradigm Initiative Nigeria & Public and Private Development Centre (PPDC). Free airtime was provided by Nigeria Info 95.1FM as their support for the program.

Also in 2016, we continued our No Wahala Monday program with the support of Top Radio 90.9 FM, Lagos. The No Wahala Monday program is a platform which helps citizens to 'help themselves' by providing relevant information and steps to resolving issues they encounter with the supply of basic amenities and the services of government agencies e.g. electricity, roads, dealing with the Nigerian Police etc.

5. Publications

EiE Showcases

Through various platforms, we have provided thought leadership on conversations connecting citizens, government and technology.

2016 marked the 4th year as the only organization curating events focused on these issues during Social Media Week Lagos. In previous years, we have hosted the former Minister of Communication Technology, Mrs Omobola Johnson; Sahara Repoters' publisher, Yele Sowore; Senate President, Dr. Bukola Saraki; former Head of the Nigeria Police Complaints Response Unit, Mr. Yomi Shogunle & the DG of the Bureau of Public Service Reforms, Dr. Joe Abah.

In the last 3 years, we also hosted a concert on the final day of SMWLagos as a channel to leverage our celebrity RSVP Ambassadors to lend their voices to issues around freedom of speech and the power that social media gives citizens to amplify their voices. Called 'Music & Words: Celebrating Freedom of Speech', it has featured Seun Kutu, Omawumi & Brymo. This year we had, Omawumi & Reminisce.

For SMWLagos, we received funding from the USAID through its Strengthening Advocacy and Civic Engagement [SACE] project.

In 2012, we co-hosted a conference titled New Media & Governance: Tools and Trends to look at the role of new media in the 2011 elections and the different roles it can play in governance. It was opened by the then Minister of Communication Technology, Mrs. Omobola Johnson and it had several panel sessions; a video message from Bill Gates; performances by Banky W & Darey and representation from 5 countries. It was the first conference of its kind in the world. We hoped it would be an annual conference but we weren't able to host it again until 2016.

For 2016's edition, we partnered with BudgIT & Paradigm Initiative Nigeria. We also added 'citizens' as an integral part of the conference as they are the bridge between new media tools and governance outcomes.

It was an excellent conference with great participation and engagement. We received funding from Facebook, Google and the Omidyar Network.

The New Media, Citizens & Governance Conference is now established as a bi-annual event, with the next edition in October 2018.

We developed Revoda for the 2011 general elections to allow citizens report happenings during the election process. It has gone through several iterations with the last one for the 2015 general elections.

We also take direct action through protests, lawsuits and campaigns with specific demands.

An ongoing campaign is #OpenNASS which calls for an open, transparent & accountable legislative arm. We have 5 demands, with the key one being that the National Assembly make its budget open. It has been closed for 7 years! In December, we launched a toll-free hotline - in partnership with VOTO Mobile, that allowed citizens to sign a petition with their phones demanding transparency in the National Assembly.

In line with our RSVP campaign, we were INEC-accredited observers for the Ondo and Edo gubernatorial elections. We also collaborated with Channels Television to host the Edo gubernatorial debate. Policy, Legal & Advocacy Centre (PLAC) joined the partnership to host the Ondo gubernatorial debate.

EiE is still the only organization that has hosted or co-hosted the most debates since 2011. Channels TV has been a consistent partner for our debates.

We recorded some victories with our 'Office of the Citizen' campaign during the year:

1. Through our amplification, residents of Araromi/Mende area in Lagos got actionable responses from the Ikeja DISCO on their estimated billing & metering issues.
2. We joined other organizations & individuals to protest the Fivolous Petitions Bill (Anti-Social Media Bill). We supported with a phone poll and 3,320 Nigerians called to vote against the bill. EiE's Executive Director – 'Yemi Adamolekun, and Paradigm Initiative Nigeria's Executive Director - 'Gbenga Sesan, were part of those who gave presentations at the public hearing at the National Assembly. The bill was later stepped down.

The Fivolous Petitions Prohibition Bill aka 'Social Media Bill'

A Elements of the Bill

- 1 Petitions need identification which contradicts Section 27 of Freedom of Information Act or Whistleblower Protection, and doesn't help us fight against corruption
- 2 7th Senate passed a Whistle Blower Protection Bill on June 2, 2015, an Fivolous Petitions Prohibition Bill 2015 contradicts the Senate's own actions
- 3 Particular focus on Social Media will violate privacy, for example reading private SMS, whatsapp, messages, etc
- 4 President Buhari's Anti-Corruption campaign triggered an O-SiAs, including Whistleblower Protection Bill 2015
- 5 Punishment for slanders, libel, etc. are already covered under other laws so Fivolous Petitions Prohibition Bill is Redundant

B Current Status

- 1st and 2nd reading done
- Public hearing held on Monday March 7, 2016
- Committee is working on a report to take back to the floor of the Senate

Nigeria: Edo Guber Election - APC, PDP Candidates, Others, Set for Debate

Tagged: Governance • Nigeria • West Africa

By Chetas Ukpang

The two major contenders in the forthcoming governorship election in Edo State, Godwin Obaseki of the All Progressives Congress, and Osagie Ize-Iyamu of the Peoples Democratic Party, are to square up against each other in a governorship debate.

The debate is on Sunday, September 4, and both Mr. Obaseki and Mr. Ize-Iyamu have confirmed their participation, according to a statement issued on Friday by its organizers, EIE.

EIE is co-hosting the event with Channels television.

Two other candidates - Onwura Osaro and Amos Akerlogbe of the All Progressives Grand Alliance and Labour Party respectively - have also accepted to take part in the debate which will be shown live by 7pm on Channels Television.

Topics to be debated are security, unemployment, and the economy.

EIE NIGERIA, PARADIGM INITIATIVE NIGERIA, AND BUDGIT TO HOST 'NEW MEDIA, CITIZENS & GOVERNANCE CONFERENCE' IN ABUJA

By Chetas Ukpang

EIE Nigeria, Paradigm Initiative (PI) and Budgit will host the 'New Media, Citizens & Governance Conference' from Wednesday, October 20 - Thursday, October 27 in Abuja.

The event will feature a New Media and Governance Conference in 2012 to bring together and foster a vibrant and successful media, technology and business ecosystem to explore the use of new media for improved government, accountability and civic engagement.

This year's conference will build on the 2012 conference with a particular focus on citizens' roles in the digital and responsibilities that come with freedom of speech and access to information.

The conference will open with a welcome address by Mallam Nasir Uba, a former Minister of Education and a former secretary of the Office of the CIB.

Enough is Enough Nigeria (EIE), a non-governmental organisation (NGO), has been invited to attend the United States (US) final presidential debate.

In a statement on Tuesday, EIE said the invitation by the US National Democratic Institute (NDI) was due to the recognition it got from hosting and funding of debates in Nigeria over the past five years.

"It is deeply gratifying that our work on debates was recognized and a privilege to learn from the CPD and other debate organisers. Of course, it's also very exciting to witness a debate that will be talked about for years to come," Yemi Adamolekun, executive director of EIE, said.

"Over the last five years, EIE has funded, hosted or co-hosted debates in Cross River (2012), Anambra (2013), Ekiti (2014), Osun (2014), Rivers (2015), Plateau (2015), Bayelsa (2015) and Edo (2016). EIE also co-hosted debates for youth party leaders in Cross River and for the APC and PDP national youth party leaders in 2015.

"In 2011, EIE created the RSVP Campaign - Register | Select | Vote | Protect - as a voter education and get-out-the-vote vehicle, encouraging young Nigerians to register to vote, select credible candidates, vote wisely and protect their votes on election day and in the four years in between elections.

At the New Media and Governance Conference in Abuja, the first of which was held on Wednesday, October 20, the organizers have set out a vision for a vibrant and successful media, technology and business ecosystem to explore the use of new media for improved government, accountability and civic engagement.

The conference will open with a welcome address by Mallam Nasir Uba, a former Minister of Education and a former secretary of the Office of the CIB.

Now, the time has come to reach the objectives of EIE and how they can be achieved. It is time for an organization to hold the government accountable after the National Assembly and how that can be done through the beginning.

Nigeria: Ondo State Governorship Debate 2016 - Live Updates

Tagged: Governance • Nigeria • West Africa

By Jessica Okunribido

Voters in Ondo State are going to the polls on Saturday, November 26 to elect a new governor that would take over from Oluksang Akintoye, whose tenure expires in February 2017.

Although 28 political parties are nominating governorship candidates for the coming election, the Ondo State government is debate-holding at the BTO Hall, Ilca Road Akure, will tonight have in attendance governorship candidates from four political parties.

The candidates are Oluksang Akintoye of the Alliance for Democracy, Amin Ibrahim of the Peoples Democratic Party, Nofun Akintoye of the All Progressives Congress and Olu Afolajade of the Social Democratic Party.

The debate is jointly organized by Channels Television, Enough is Enough (EIE), and Policy and Legal Advocacy Centre (PLAC).

Organisers say candidates are expected to answer questions on the economy, corruption, and a host of other issues affecting the needs of the citizens of the state.

Social media has increasingly risen to become the platform where citizens debate, criticise, reject, ridicule, promote, and engage politics and politicians. Indeed, to see what happens at the time they happen, one only needs to be on 'Nigerian Twitter'. The sheer size of engagement recorded on social media platforms has partly given rise to the development of civic organisations like Enough is Enough Nigeria and BudgetT which stir public discussions. In addition, there h of political analysts, commentators, PR experts, and blog

Despite failing for over a year to keep his repeated promise of making details of the National Assembly budget public, Senate President Bukola Saraki says he will fulfill that pledge in a "few days' time".

Mr. Saraki denied the Senate had reneged in its promise to open the budget concealed since 2010.

"The budget breakdown will be released," Bamikole Omisore, a spokesperson for the senate president said Tuesday. "Everything is being worked on and in the next couple of days it'll be published."

Mr. Omisore said Nigerians should remember that aspects of the budget breakdown had been made public by this newspaper in recent past.

"There was the first batch of the breakdown which PREMIUM TIMES published a few months ago.

"The Senate President is committed to an open and accountable National Assembly and Nigerians will definitely get that. The National Assembly is holding a leadership meeting on the matter, so give us a few days more to publish the details."

Overwhelming Majority Of Nigerians Support Greater Transparency In Government, #OpenNASS Survey Finds

It is clear that despite low levels of civic knowledge there is already huge support for EiE's #OpenNASS campaign, especially with regards to making the breakdown of the 2016 National Assembly budget public after several promises and assurances to do so by the Senate President and the Speaker of the House of Representatives.

#OpenNASS, an advocacy campaign organized by Enough is Enough Nigeria (EiE) and VOTO Mobile with support from the Omidiyar Network, conducted a survey finding, among other things, that an overwhelming majority of Nigerians support greater government transparency. The group therefore called upon the National Assembly to take measures that would make the budget and other aspects of government more accessible to Nigerians.
